Wisconsin's Debt Limitation

Gov. Nelson says the state of Wisconsin will owe about $160,000,000 by 1963. This prediction is made in the face of the fact that the Wisconsin constitution provides a: debt limit of $100,000. Everyone knows, however, that through the use of dummy building corporations, the state is able to borrow money. Thus the state goes into debt although technically the constitution

Wisconsin people, their legislators and public officials may take pride in the fact that Wisconsin has no public debt. To reach this conclusion they must insist that Wisconsin is not paying off bonds but is paying rent to a corporation which in turn uses the money to pay off the bonds. Thus if Wisconsin needs a new dormitory at the university or new office building the practice is to set up a corporation which will build it and then technically rent it to the state. The state collects whatever income there may be from the dormitory and with it pays off the rent to the corporation. In the case of an office building, the state pays funds which it may wish to call rent and they go to pay off the bonds and eventually the building belongs to the

Gov. Nelson wants to do away with this business by removing the prohibition from the constitution. If that were done he contends the state would be able to borrow money at a lower rate of interest because the full faith and credit of the state would be behind the loan. The governor contends that a saving of $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 could be made on every $100,000,000 of debt if the constitution were changed.

However, there is considerable opposition to such a change. The people of Wisconsin appear to have some pride in the fact that the state is "without debt." Politicians who realize this matter of state pride are reluctant to be the ones to eliminate it. At a hearing in Madison the other day, Wisconsin Manufacturers Association and the Wisconsin Chamber of Commerce opposed such an amendment. They said that any debt increase should await the tax revision developments. Others representing taxpayers' groups suggested the state should pay building costs out of current revenue instead of taking the convenient method of postponing obligations. This argument is futile. It is pointed out that the state actually owes $65,000,000 today and will add about $40,000,000 more before July. The governor, looking ahead, believes that an additional $60,000,000 will be added to the debt by 1963. These expenditures are for buildings which, according to the best judgment of the people in charge of the government, are necessary or will be necessary before 1965. There is no possibility of taking such an amount as $100,000,000 out of tax revenue between now and 1963. The state will have to borrow it through dummy corporations as it

If, however, the legislature should advance the proposed constitutional amendment, future loans might be secured on state bond issues at a somewhat lower rate. The amendment under discussion now provides that such loans might be made for the construction of public buildings only. That limit would be one per cent of the state's equalized property value and only one-fifth of one per cent could be borrowed in any single year. At the present moment property values would permit borrowing of $190,000,000 but not more than $38.-000,000 in one year.

There appears to be a tendency in Madison to treat the proposed amendment as a partisan matter. There is no sense in that whatsoever. The legislature should find out from expert witnesses exactly what the advantages in borrowing on state bond issues would be. Then it would be in a position to determine whether to recommend this change to the people. The fact that Gov. Nelson has proposed it should have nothing whatever to do with the method of financing which most certainly should be decided on its merits alone.

The Voters Show Good Judgment

The comparatively few voters who went to the polls in Wisconsin Tuesday to nominate candidates for judicial, school and municipal elections, did a very creditable job. As usual only a fractional part of the voters accepted their responsibility and they responded in the best Wisconsin tradition. It is quite obvious that a majority of the voters are willing to entrust the business of nominating candidates to the few who are willing to undertake it.

In nominating Stewart G. Honeck and Circuit Judge Myron L. Gordon, who seek the office of justice of the Wisconsin Supreme Court, the voters indicated they were well aware of the issues and the personalities involved. There may have been

Keeping Industry in the City

Cities are just as much interested in keeping the industries they have as in attracting new ones although most of the publicity relates to securing new industries. Architectural Forum, a building magazine, has been looking into the efforts cities are making to retain industries through urban renewal projects. It is found that out of 437 projects of all types there are 133 in which some part of the land will be available for industrial re-use. Currently law permits 100 per cent of an industrial grant to be used for such projects but only under certain conditions. In its survey, the Forum found that the average size of such industrial sites is only 26 acres per project and that only 24 such projects now are well advanced.

The most carefully thought out industrial renewal scheme, in the opinion of the Forem writers, was one in Cincinnati which will assemble 400 acres for industry and related housing adjacent to the central business area. An expressway giving ready access to nearby business areas will sepainto the industrial section from the residential section. The property now is valued at $14,000,000 and the debt will be fully amortized by 1971 when it is believed the property will be worth $60,000,000. By that time the faxes collected in the area will have increased four times the present total and the city's investment will be completely paid off. People plan and carry out urban renewal projects with the intention of preserving their city and maintaining the central high valuation area as an important contributor to tax revenue. Where such renewal efforts are neglected cities tend to spread out into the adjoining territory leaving the central area a mess of unprofitable slums. Millions of dollars worth of property is lost and the city becomes larger, more unwieldy and more expensive to operate.

The renewal projects have the great virtue of eventually costing nothing. Large sums of money may be needed to get the project underway but as block after block is cleared and renewed with modern high value property, the city generally begins to prosper. Within a few years the investment is paid off, the city is restored to something more modern and better than its orginal state and taxes of the whole community are lower because what once was a slum area yielding little now is paying an important part of the bills. Cities never need grow old if renewal is undertaken and carried on continuously. But where it is neglected huge renewal projects are necessary and because they are expensive they usually require federal

Drilling for Oil on the Moon

Stories of satellites, sputniks and now the training of astronauts are fantastic and fascinating.

Perhaps one of the most interesting parts of this story is that relating to the automatic devices which have been perfected to explore the outer space and report back to earth on their findings. Radio and television devices have played an important part in this form of space exploration. Probably when this phase of invention and application of science to unmanned space ships is over we will have discovered new ways of advancing automa-

Oil Facts, a publication of the American Petroleum Institute, recently published an account of the development of a miniature "well drilling" device which is being made ready to bore into the surface of the moon some time in 1963. A U. S. oil field equipment company has developed the machine for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Compared with the ordinary oil drilling rig which weighs thousands of pounds and often stands more than 100 feet high, this little moon driller is about 5 feet tall and weighs about 60 pounds on earth which will give it about 10 pounds on the moon.

The report says that some four aircraft companies are working on designs for a space ship to carry the drilling rig and recording instruments to the moon. It is pointed out that the drill and other instruments will be removed from the ship after it lands on the moon and placed in operation by electronic command. The drill will be powered by cylinders of gas and will hore into the moon's surface to obtain core samples. These samples will be analyzed automatically aboard the space ship and results will be radioed back to the scientists on earth.

The machine is said to be capable of boring through dust or solid rock in a vacuum and under temperatures ranging from 200 degrees above to 300 degrees below zero. Fascinating as this little machine may be it is no less interesting than the indication that the American scientists are confident that within three years we will not only be in physical contact with the moon but actually will be boring into its outer crust.

Although the judge spoke of law enforcement in general, I would like to consider his remarks against a background of our local and national traffic

First, Judge Schmiege made the statement that a doctor who had a record of patient relapses which paralleled those of the various penal institutions would soon find himself without patrents. He could have used the same simile with regard to traffic law violators with equal accuracy, I'm sure. A very high percentage of those who appear in traffic court are repeaters and if the assessment of fines and other punitive measures had curative powers these people would long since have become expert drivers. Still speaking in a general vein. Judge Schmiege said that education, or more precisely, reeducation of those who continually find themselves in trouble with the law, is their only hope for rehabilitation. Among the examples which he cited was mention of the safety school which is maintained by the Municipal Court He added, in this vein, that getting similar schools to operate within the framework of the local school system seemed to be a lost cause This, then is the point which I wish to pursue. What is more legical than a course in driver education, starting at least at the junior high school level? Why should not our educators be thoroughly concerned with teaching the proper operation of a motor vehicle as a phase in the development of a citizen of our age and times? Where will these people spend a greater percentage of their waking hours than behind the wheel of their automobile? The under cited the comparatively rudimentary course in the whole affair seems to be driver education offered by the Appleton Vocational School and said that insurance rates for young drivers so trained were. But that does not mean that long-term state bonded obligations will be avoided. Indeed, the signs are abundant that the so-called corporation device for borrowing outside the prohibitions of the constitution will be used more freely and boldly during the present budget term than ever before since this ingenious, if less than candid, gimmick was invented many years ago.

The state is now committed to about $100,000,000 of such state corporation building bonds. The current proposal, significantly endorsed by some leading legislative Republicans would add some $40,000,000 to that total.

Prices of some of the trucks are affected by the amount of optional equipment desired.

The lowest bid came from Central Engineering, Milwaukee, It offered three alternate trucks, at $21,462, $21,761 and $23,800.

Other bids were from Mack Trucks, Chicago, $25,027; American-LaFrance. Milwaukee. $24,-400; Public Works Equipment, Clintonville, $26.214, and Seagrave, Barrington, Ill., $24,678. The prices of all these trucks would be lower if some optional equipment were eliminated.

More Bids Two bids were received for an accounting machine for the cityclerk's office National Cash Register Co. bid $16,948 and Borroughs Corp., $16,701. The bids were referred to Clerk Elden Brochm

Sealed bids were received, also, on land for a new city garage, sewer pipe, sewer trenching, crushed stone and chips for street work, street marking paint and motor oil for city vehicles. All bids were referred to department heads for tabulation.

Ten bids were received for a garage site, most of them west of the city and south of College Av-: enue. Several were near the city's industrial park. Some bids quoted acre prices while others gave total sums for various size tracks. To get an accurate comparison it will probably be necessary for the engineering department to figure out square foot prices.

Tabulation of all bids will be presented to the board next week.

Sure to Be a Conversation piece is this big popcorn shamrock, tinted green with food coloring and trimmed with a satin Emerald ribbon bow. The molded popcorn is set on a cardboard cutout that's covered and edged with aluminum foil. It makes an elegant centerpiece for a St. Patrick's Day table.

A Favorite Irish Recipe is soda bread, rich with currants or dark seedless raisins. It's easy to make and the batter is baked in a loaf pan for about one hour. After a short cooling period, the bread slices readily and then is served with pats of butter.

> So may the luck of the Irish be with you on St. Patrick's Day next week. Popcorn Shamrock

All a Shamrock takes is some cardboard, aluminum foil, trim, a favorite light popcorn ball recipe and a few drops of green food coloring. Here's how to make the shamrock centerpiece, followed by a basic syrup recipe for the popcorn balls:

Cut a shamrock shape out of cardboard, then cover with green or plain aluminum foil. The shamrock should measure about 10 inches from the bottom of the stem to the top and seven inches across Trim with aluminum foil edging or contrasting paper trim. Pop about three quarts of popcorn and place in a buttered bowl in a 300-degree oven. Make syrup, when cooked, add one teaspoon or more of green food coloring. Keep Syrup Hot

Set aside a fourth of syrup. keeping it hot enough to stay liquid (double boiler useful for this) and pour the rest over the popped corn, mixing well with a buttered spoon.

Working quickly, with hands greased or slightly wet, pile the coated popcorn onto the shamrock pattern, packing it firmly on all sides. Build to edge of foil and to height of at least two inches. Let this mold cool

For the finishing touches, trim rough edges with a sharp knife. With pastry brush and reserved syrup, touch up spots not thoroughly coated.

The new look, presented in Rome Monday evening, was the first result of a recent conference in Bologna at which Italy's hairdressers decided to get together on a national coiffure twice a year. Lots of folks (peanut fiends and big families especially) asked if we couldn't put Skippy in a super-mammoth-economy-family-king-size jar—and it's at your grocer's now. 28 ounces—a full pound and three-quarters—of America's largest-selling peanut butter.

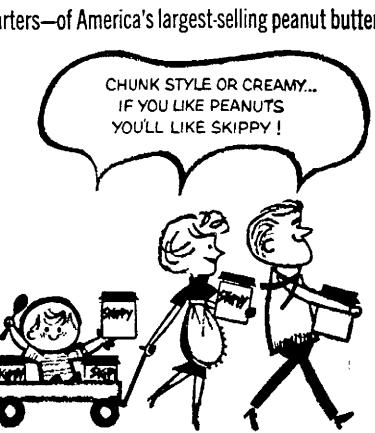

SKIPPY tastes exactly like plump, selected fresh-roasted peanuts with just the right amount of seasoning. Skippy is made entirely from U.S. Grade No. I peanuts.

SKIPPY stays fresh to the last spoonful at the bottom of the jar. It's the only peanut butter that takes out the "stalemakers."

GROWN-UPS enjoy Skippy as much as the youngsters (smooth spreading, easy to digest, won't become dry, sticky or oily).

BIG JAR, medium jar or little jar - there's nothing else like Skippy -no other peanut butter is made with Skippy's patented process.

8 Golden Gloves Champs to Face New York's Best

CHICAGO (AP) - Chicago's Golden Glovers will have staying nower, if not knockout punch, against New York's top amateurs in the Inter-City bouts March 29 in Chicago Staditim.

The eight new titlists crowned Wednesday night in the tournament of champions finals in the stadium failed to produce a single!

However, there were some dingdong battles, especially in the heavier classes, in which the finalists belabored each other with a ferocity that had the 10,432 fans wondering why somebody didn't get decked for keeps.

Among the potential 1961 Foxes getting an early start by training in the parental camp are pitchers Dave McNally and John Miller and shortstop Mickey McGuire.

The Ron Miller case is another evidence that the already-tough Big 10 is further tightening its scholastic policy. Approximately 95 varsity athletes have been declared ineligible this year for academic deficiencies. In the Miller case, the Big 10 took away one of his two remaining years of football eligibility because of attendance at a Chicago junior college. The University of Wisconsin quarterback did not compete in athletics at the school in question.

French Visitor in Lawrence Staff Thursday, March 9, 1961 Appleton Post-Crescent C16 Does Study for Book on Appleton Education

Dr. Camille - Joseph Schmit, visfting lecturer in French at Lawrence College this year, is part sophisticated continental, part innocent abroad.

The sophisticated continental aspect of his character grows from his international background. He a is Belgian by birth and education, has carried on his teaching career in Germany and the United States and has done post-doctoral work in Switzerland.

The innocent abroad part of his' personality is reflected in the joyous wonder with which he views the new world, and his fresh. journalistic eye in comparing old and new cultures.

To Write Book

When he returns to Europe in June, he will carry a portfolio bulging with facts and written impressions of what life is like in-Appleton. The clippings and notes have a higher destiny than a tourist's scrapbook. Dr. Schmit has been commissioned by a Belgian' publisher to bring out a sociological study on Appleton in book

When he explains his project to people on the campus, he generally says: "You know 'Village in' the Vaucluse' - the book by the Harvard professor who lived in a: French village for a year to record: the life there? Mine will be a village in the Vaucluse in reverse really in reverse, for that professor did nothing but his book on villace life, while I am doing mine in addition to teaching."
